Property Description

Perched above the quiet rural community of Pacuarito, these thoughtfully designed modern mountain villas offer a rare blend of privacy, comfort, and strategic location. Pacuarito sits between San Isidro de El General and the coastal town of Dominical, providing easy access to both the mountains and the Pacific while enjoying a cool, refreshing climate at approximately 2,900 feet above sea level. The area is known for its peaceful setting, clean air, and increasingly popular appeal among buyers seeking a balance between nature and convenience. The property spans 14,205 square meters (approximately 3.5 acres) and features a harmonious mix of open pasture and mature forest. Tucked into the forest canopy are two newly constructed studio villas, each offering approximately 860 square feet of well-designed living space. From the villas, filtered views extend through the trees toward the surrounding mountains and valleys, creating a serene and private atmosphere immersed in nature.
