Property Description

Perched on a 5,725.6 m² (1.41-acre) homesite inside the protected ecological community of Tierra Pacífica, this 4-bedroom, 3.5-bath residence delivers privacy, elevation, and an immediate connection to nature—surrounded by permanent green-zone forest that will never be developed. Sited atop a gentle knoll, the home enjoys elevated views into the treetop canopy. The terrain falls away behind the house, creating a wide natural buffer and a serene backdrop of mature trees and frequent wildlife sightings. The heart of the home is a generous main living area with high ceilings and an open floorplan that promotes effortless flow. Large doors and windows flood the interior with natural light and frame seamless indoor-outdoor living, marrying classic residential proportions with contemporary finishes for a comfortable, refined feel. Outdoor living is emphasized with patios adjacent to the living room and a covered rancho pavilion—ideal for dining, relaxing, or entertaining while immersed in the forest setting.
