Property Description

Soul Home is a single-level residence in Valle del Sol, Santa Ana, offering a refined Spanish colonial design with natural materials, warm architectural details, and a thoughtful connection to its surroundings in Costa Rica. Set within a residential golf community in the western area of San José, the property combines controlled access with a layout designed for both daily living and entertaining. An exterior brick corridor leads to the entrance, where detailed wooden doors open into a bright foyer. Natural light highlights a stone-accented wall and ceramic flooring framed with wood, creating a welcoming transition into the social areas positioned on either side. The main living and dining areas are designed with openness and continuity. Wood-framed transitions connect both spaces, each finished with cedar wood floors and direct access to the terrace through sliding wooden doors. Exposed wooden beams with corbels define the living room, while the dining area features a coffered brick ceiling with a central dome that draws in light from multiple angles.
