Property Description

At the end of a quiet road in Los Angeles de Rivas, this land offers a rare degree of seclusion and immersion in nature. Surrounded by forest and defined by its scale, the property feels distinctly removed, yet remains part of a growing local community grounded in conservation and permaculture. The setting is calm and private, with the sense of being fully held by the landscape while still connected to like-minded neighbors shaping a thoughtful rural environment. The property encompasses 10 hectares of primary forest, equivalent to approximately 100,000 m² or 1,076,391 ft². Mature trees, layered vegetation, and natural clearings create a landscape that feels established and enduring. Several natural springs are located within the property boundaries, providing an abundant and reliable water source and reinforcing the land's long-term sustainability. The presence of water subtly shapes the experience of the land, contributing sound, movement, and ecological richness.
