Property Description

Perched along Calle Lloroso in Los Angeles de Rivas, this property offers what many consider the finest views in the entire Chirripó Valley. From every angle, the landscape opens toward Costa Rica's highest peaks, capturing the sweeping ridgelines of the Talamanca range and the quiet immensity of the high country. At the end of the road, the land meets La Amistad International Park, the country's largest conservation corridor and a UNESCO World Heritage Site extending from Costa Rica into Panama. The result is a sense of openness and protection that is rare this close to village amenities. Measuring 19,591 square meters, the property offers two ready-to-build planteles, each positioned to frame the mountain horizon. Masonry work for water diversion is already in place, and the access road is well maintained, allowing an easy five-minute drive to Finca Brinca and the Waldorf-inspired Escuelita Finca Mia.
