Property Description

Hatillo is a very unique town along the southern Pacific coast of Costa Rica. This property is located along a short section of road that the brand new paved highway bypasses, so you can get to the paved road within a few minutes from leaving your building site but don't have to see and hear the traffic that will surely use the paved route. Two window ocean views can be seen from the building pad, and large trees within a beautiful jungle surround the site on two sides. If you want a little elevation and a quick drive to the surf, this could be the property for you.
