Property Description

Contemporary Ocean-View Home in Bijagual A Rare Setting Above Jacó A rare setting: sunsets spilling into the Gulf of Nicoya, with untouched jungle rising behind you. This well-built contemporary home with European-inspired design is perched high above Jacó, where refined architecture meets raw Costa Rican nature. Clean lines, quality construction, expansive glass, and wide terraces frame sweeping ocean views while the jungle forms a dramatic, living backdrop. Bijagual is widely regarded as the Beverly Hills of Jacó—a lush, low-density mountain enclave known for privacy, cooler temperatures, waterfalls, and some of the most captivating views on Costa Rica's Central Pacific. Untouched, pristine, and quietly exclusive. The Home Set on the edge of the tropical forest, the house looks out over treetops toward the Nicoya Peninsula and the Gulf of Nicoya beyond. From the terrace, nature unfolds daily: toucans at sunrise, monkeys moving through the canopy, butterflies drifting past as the sun drops into the sea.
