Property Description

Located in Bajo Las Bonitas, this 32-acre property offers a unique opportunity to own a large piece of land surrounded by nature in a growing area above the South Pacific. At this price point, it's not easy to find a property with this amount of land, natural water, and potential. Whether you plan to build now or keep it long term, this is a solid opportunity in an area that is steadily increasing in value. It also gives you the option to enjoy the property in the meantime—a place to disconnect, spend time in nature, and get away from the noise. The property features a natural spring, usable building areas, and a beautiful secondary jungle that has been regenerating for over 30 years. It's a very peaceful setting, ideal for building a home, creating a private retreat, or simply holding the land as an investment while the area continues to grow. About 200 meters from the property, there is access to a public road where you can take walks and enjoy open views, including ocean views from around 3,200 feet of elevation.
