Property Description

Situated in the pristine northern region of Costa Rica's Osa Peninsula along the Pacific coastline, Ecological Sanctuary Velamar presents a rare opportunity for ecotourism development, conservation projects, and sustainable living. Located within one of the most biodiverse regions in the world, this private wildlife refuge offers convenient access by land, sea, and air, making it an exceptional investment destination for eco-conscious developers and nature enthusiasts alike. The property's diverse topography provides spectacular ocean views from multiple elevations, creating stunning panoramic landscapes that enhance both its natural beauty and development potential. Just 28.1 kilometers (17.5 miles) offshore lies the world-renowned Isla del Caño Biological Reserve, a protected marine sanctuary celebrated for snorkeling, vibrant coral reefs, and abundant tropical marine life. Velamar is uniquely defined by its remarkable mix of ecosystems, including untouched beaches, flourishing mangroves, tranquil wetlands, swamps, and lush tropical rainforest.
