Property Description

Brisas del Golf is a boutique residential condominium concept that combines flexibility, contemporary design, and construction efficiency within the prestigious Valle del Sol community in Santa Ana, Costa Rica. This private enclave of only eight homesites is designed for those seeking to create a modern residence with the freedom to build immediately or develop their project at a later stage, while preserving the value of an investment in one of the Central Valley's most established residential communities. Available homesites start at 513 m² and are delivered with a pre-designed architectural concept, construction ready permits, and site preparation already completed, streamlining the development process and reducing the time required before construction begins. This approach allows each owner to determine the ideal timeline for building while maintaining the integrity of the project's original vision.
