Property Description

The Sacred View of Osa is an eight-hectare off-grid eco-sanctuary perched above a lagoon and the Pacific Ocean on Costa Rica's untamed Osa Peninsula, just one mile from the entrance to Corcovado National Park, one of the most biodiverse places on Earth. This extraordinary retreat includes eight elevated, private bungalows, each oriented toward sweeping views of rainforest, lagoon, beach, and open ocean. From this natural ridgeline, the panorama is both vast and intimate: sunrise over the jungle, sunset into the Pacific, and starlit skies that feel close enough to touch. Every day, wildlife moves through three distinct ecosystems—marine, aquatic, and rainforest—turning each moment into a living documentary. From howler monkeys and scarlet macaws to sea turtles and whales, The Sacred View of Osa sits within a rare ecological convergence. At the heart of the property are three distinct and compelling paths forward for the next owner: Transform the lodge into a world-class eco-retreat inspired by iconic wilderness destinations, expanding positioning of The Sacred View of Osa among the most unique nature properties in Central America.
